Systems and Legal Advocacy for vulnerable people with Disability

What to do if you disagree with a National Disability Insurance Agency (NDIA) decision?

Many decisions made by the NDIA are reviewable, including: acceptance as a participant of the National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS); or the provision of reasonable and necessary supports that have or have not been included in your plan.

How to apply for a review of a NDIA decision

If you are unhappy with a decision made by the NDIA, you can request an internal review within three months of receiving the decision. When asking for a review you should explain why the decision is incorrect and when possible provide additional supporting documents. There is an Application for review of a reviewable decision that can help you describe why you want an internal review of the decision; <https://www.ndis.gov.au/participants/how-review-planning-decision>.

A request for internal review of a decision can be made by:

- A written request to: Chief Executive Officer, National Disability Insurance Agency
- PO Box 700, Canberra ACT 2601
- Talking to someone at an NDIA office
- Calling 180 800 110
TTY: 1800 555 677 Speak and Listen: 1800 555 727 TIS: 131 450

*1800 calls are free from fixed lines; call from mobiles may be charged

- Sending an email to: enquiries@ndis.gov.au

The staff member who completes the review will be independent of the person who made the original decision.

What to do if you are unhappy with the NDIA internal review

If you still disagree with a decision after the internal review is completed, you can apply to the Administrative Appeals Tribunal (AAT) to conduct an external merits review. An application to the AAT must be made within 28 days of receiving the decision of an internal review by the NDIA: <http://www.aat.gov.au/resources/forms>.
